Living spaces have always been a blend of personalities, moods, and comfort. Over the last two years, people have been confined to their interiors, looking for serenity and peace of mind during remote work.

We have seen an inclination towards an organic lifestyle in almost all aspects of life, and a similar trend is visible in curated home interiors. There is a growing demand for sustainable products, subtle color schemes, and minimalist approaches.

We asked a few designers where they could get inspiration from and what trends they see for the future.

FEATURED EMPLOYEE

MIKE ROUXEL

FUN FACT

Mike loves vacationing in the Riviera Maya area of Mexico.

MIKE started his career with Brenlo, 24 years ago. It is interesting to know that he began his journey at Brenlo as a summer Job employee and has been with us ever since.

He started at the warehouse, picking up orders and moving inventory. Today, Mike supports Brenlo as one of our amazing Outside Sales team members, building and maintaining industry relationships.

Besides work, Mike enjoys spending weekends with family and friends at his cottage. He spends most of his summertime enjoying grilled food, the seadoo and golfing. During winters, you can find him having fun on his snowmobile!

Mike also enjoys The Leafs and Blue Jays (when they are winning!)

We are grateful to have him as part of our journey since the beginning (almost), and today, we are celebrating his sincere efforts and contributions at Brenlo.

BRENLO FAMILY

Brenlo sponsored tickets for employees and their families to enjoy the Blue Jays game at Rogers Center.
